

French Applaud U. S. Labor Envoys' Terms to Germans

Will Not Meet Teuton Delegates Under Imperial Yoke, Chairman Tells Deputies

Welcomed in Chamber

Speaker Deschanel Extends Hearty Greeting to the American Mission

PARIS, May 11.—Previous to their departure for England late last night the members of the American labor delegation were received in the Chamber of Deputies, Premier Clemenceau being present. James Wilson, chairman of the committee, reiterated the decision of American labor organizations not to meet German labor delegates under any consideration until they had thrown off the imperialist military yoke.

In the committee which received the delegation, in addition to Premier Clemenceau, were Paul Deschanel, president of the Chamber; former Premier Paul Painlevé and Antonin Dubost, president of the Senate.

The delegates entered the Chamber as Victor Boret, the Food Minister, was responding to an interpellation by Deputy Lafont concerning the institution of three meatless days a week. The minister was being heckled and interrupted by Radical Socialist Deputies, and the speaker was continually sounding his gong calling the House to order.

Welcomed by France's Rulers

At the conclusion of M. Boret's speech Henry Franklin-Bouillon moved adjournment, which was seconded by Louis Klotz, Minister of Finance. The ministers, Deputies and visiting delegates assembled in the Speaker's chamber, where M. Deschanel welcomed the Americans, saying:

"We render homage not only to the great financial effort of America, but to its military help. American soldiers are mixing their blood with ours on fields of battle to insure a peace from which justice shall be reborn. The courage and abnegation of the American soldiers has endeared them to our people, who are proud to have such daring companions in arms."

M. Dubost greeted the delegation briefly on behalf of the Senate. Edward T. Meredith, responding for the visitors, said that the French pride in the Americans was mutual and that the American soldiers were honored to fight side by side with the glorious French under General Foch.

Mr. Wilson's declaration concerning labor's attitude toward German labor was cheered loudly, Premier Clemenceau leading the applause. The Premier shook Mr. Wilson's hand warmly and patted him on the shoulder.

Delighted by Visit

John P. Frey, Martin F. Ryan, George L. Berry and Mr. Wilson told The Associated Press that the party was delighted with its visit to France. They had only one fault to find—the time allowed them was too short. Concerning the results of their sojourn Messrs. Berry and Wilson said:

"We are confident we have rendered our country and France a great service. The American delegates last night received a deputation of French Socialists, which presented a declaration drawn up by Deputy Alexandre Varenne. It was to the effect that the view of American labor, that there can be no meeting with German workers until they have done something toward overthrowing militarism, was shared by the Socialists represented by the delegation, amounting to fully one-third of the party."

It was explained that the statement was intended to dissipate any false idea in regard to French Socialists, which might be created by divergent views among labor organizations and in Socialist circles.

Watson Seeks to Postpone

Postal Increase One Year

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Notice was given in the Senate to-day by Senator Watson of Indiana that next Monday he would move to suspend the rules to introduce a bill postponing for one year enforcement of the provision in the war revenue act increasing second class postal rates, which goes into effect on July 1.

Newspaper publishers have protested that the act is unworkable and that its operation should be suspended until Congress can put the increases on a scientific basis.

Caillaux Linked With Traitors at Bonnet Rouge Trial

'When I Deal With Treason I Have to Pronounce His Name,' Prosecutor Says

PARIS, May 11.—The trial of the directors of the "Bonnet Rouge," the defunct Socialist and Germanophile newspaper, entered its last phases to-day, when Captain Mornet, the prosecutor, summed up his case for the state.

Captain Mornet said that by conversations about the San Stefano Casino Company with Marx, the Mannheim banker, M. Duval, one of the accused, had been drawn little by little into treason, receiving money from Marx and working for an early peace between France and Germany.

The prosecutor recited the history of the "Bonnet Rouge," recalling that its director, Miguel Almeréya, who died before the trial began, had, with six judicial condemnations against his record, received 40,000 francs from Joseph Caillaux, former Premier, in February, 1914.

The "Bonnet Rouge," he said, had violently defended Mme. Caillaux following the shooting of Editor Calmette in March, 1914; that Almeréya had formed a bodyguard to escort M. Caillaux to the courtroom, and had distributed cards of admission to the trial of Mme. Caillaux.

Captain Mornet showed the parallel between the fifteen peace campaigns by the "Bonnet Rouge" and the "Gazette des Ardennes," a newspaper published in the French language by Germans in occupied sections of Northern France. He read articles showing the peace-at-any-price policy of the "Bonnet Rouge." One quotation was: "President Wilson's action is evidently a victory for those who will fight to the bitter end, but war is not won by such victories." The connection of M. Caillaux with the present case was closely examined by the prosecutor, who said:

"Marx is such an important agent of Germany that when the German government wishes to enter into relations, of renewed relations, with the French Premier, who it believed, rightly or wrongly, was favorable to it, it sends two documents to the ex-Premier's Paris address."

Links Caillaux and Marx

"One offered an appointment and the other gave the address of Banker Marx. Both were seized in M. Caillaux's safe in a Florence bank. The first read: 'Lipshitz not appearing desirable as an intermediary, I put myself at your disposal. I am authorized to establish relations such as you desire.' The other read: 'H. A. Marx, care of Professor Ehrbert, 27 Steinerstrasse, Bern.'"

"I think I am entitled to identify the H. A. Marx of the Caillaux affair as the H. A. Marx of the 'Bonnet Rouge' affair. We are not trying M. Caillaux yet, but I am compelled to pronounce his name every time I deal with a case of treason."

This caused a sensation in the courtroom and there was a ripple of applause, at which the presiding judge threatened to clear the court.

Norse Interests Buy Site for Ship Plant

Norwegian shipping interests in the United States have acquired a tract of land in New Jersey for one of the largest shipyards in the world, to construct vessels for Norway. First details of the vast project were made public yesterday by Christopher Hannevig, head of Hannevig & Co., of Norway, one of the greatest individual ship owners in the world.

Mr. Hannevig, who is returning to Norway to look after his interests there, said the plan had been consummated after a series of conferences with large shipping interests here. The vessels built at the New Jersey yards, he said, would be owned in Norway, but he expected they would be an important factor in solving the Allied food problem, as the boats would be put into the transatlantic passenger and cargo trade.

Curbstone Merchants on East Side Joins in War Saving Stamp Drive

The campaign to stack up quarters to help the soldiers is being given considerable impetus, according to the War Savings Committee, with headquarters in 51 Chambers Street, by hundreds of peddlers in the lower East Side.

"Wireless" Louis Zellner has had charge of lining up the curbstome merchants. All week he has been busy convincing the peddlers that the government really needs their aid in the thrift drive.

Yesterday his efforts began to bear fruit in the sale of about $3,000 worth of thrift stamps. Every cart in Orchard Street, between Delancey and Rivington, displayed a blue and yellow thrift card yesterday. So it was throughout the entire district. The cards and posters here the message of thrift in languages that could be read by all on the East Side.

To-morrow, however, will be the big day down on the East Side. The various peddlers' associations have arranged for a big parade. Flaming banners will be flung across Orchard Street, and thrift orators will talk war savings in many languages.

With Charles F. Murphy's hearty approval, Tammany district organizations will open thrift booths in their various headquarters, where the little green stickers will be on sale every night from 6 to 12. Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, has been working with the W. S. S. committee for several days on plans for the opening of these booths.

Reports yesterday by the New York Postoffice War Savings Society show that the total sale of stamps for the last week was $551,050.71. This is the best week's report since the organization of the society, and Postmaster Patten is elated by the showing.
